A number of eminent figures from Arab and Muslim countries including Al-Azhar's deputy secretary general of Al-Azhar's Association of Islamic Studies and head of the educational institutes of Al-Azhar, will be present at the event.

Salim ibn Hilal Al-Kharusi, advisor to the Minister of Awqaf and Religious Affairs of Oman, referred to the upcoming unveiling ceremony and said that the Holy Quran has always been respected by Muslims and the Divine Book is the constitution of the Muslim Ummah.

He highlighted the efforts made in writing Quran in Oman and said that the ministry has paid special attention to Quranic activities since it was established in 1997 and published Mushaf of Oman, calligraphed by a Turkish calligrapher, in 2006.

He added that the electronic Quran copy written in Othmani script, will be useful in teaching Quran and facilitate research in Quranic fields.
